DAMAGE SUIT TRIAL BEGINS

ATCHISON, KAN., MAN SUES INTERSTATE STAGE LINE CO.

ON CHANGE OF VENUE

Wilbur Bean Asks $30,000 for Alleged Permanent Injuries—Case Brought Here From Buchanan County.

Two versions of an automobile accident, which occurred on Memorial highway, a short distance from St. Joseph, were recited by attorneys in their opening statements in a damage suit for $30,000 in circuit court this morning.

L. C. Cook of Maryville presented the side of Wilbur E. Bean, age 57, of Atchison, Kan., who claims he suffered permanent injuries in the accident, and Bert G. Voorhees of St. Joseph told the version of the Interstate Stage Line company, defendant, which operates motor busses between Topeka and St. Joseph.

Mr. Cook is associated with Melvin J. Duvall of St. Joseph and George L. Brown and Ralph U. Fouts of Atchison, attorneys for the plaintiff, and Senator M. E. Ford is assisting Mr. Voorhees of the firm of Culver, Phillips and Voorhees of St. Joseph, counsel for the Stage Line company.

The case was tried once in Judge Sam Wilcox's division of Buchanan county circuit court, when a jury on March 18, 1927, returned a verdict of $1,500 for the plaintiff. Motions for a new trial and a change of venue were granted when the judge was informed of alleged jury tampering.

Bus Collides With Ford.

Bean formerly had been a farmer, but for two years prior to the accident was a barber in Atchison, Kan., with his son, Roland, age 27. The two were going from Atchison to Cameron, Mo., on June 13, 1926, and about six miles from St. Joseph on Memorial highway the accident occurred.

The plaintiff contends the Ford roadster in which he was riding with his son, who was driving, was badly damaged and that he was injured, when an Interstate bus, driven by Lloyd Wallace, collided with the rear of the Ford, with an impact which shoved the Ford into the car ahead. Bean contends that his son had brought the Ford to a stop on the right side of the road as an automobile was parked in front of them and that two cars were approaching from the opposite direction. The son stopped in order to let the two cars pass, the plaintiff contends.

His injuries consisted of a broken bone in the shoulder and a dislocated bone, is the claim. No medical treatment was given the injured parts for several weeks, as Bean maintains he did not think his shoulder was hurt seriously and he applied home remedies.

The version of the defense is that Bean passed the bus about a mile from the accident and was traveling about forty to fifty feet ahead of the bus. Suddenly, the defense contends, Bean swerved to the left of the road as if to go around some obstacle, and then swerved suddenly to the right of the road, coming to an abrupt stop without giving any warning by putting out his hand.

Claim No Damage.

The defense claims that then Wallace saw two autos approaching which were speeding and that he applied the breaks, bringing the bus to a stop and barely nosing the front end of it into the Bean car. They contend that there was no severe impact, as the passengers in the bus did not feel a jar. After the accident, the defense claims the plaintiff said he was not hurt and when questioned by Wallace, rode on

DEMOCRATS SEEK A MAN

PARTY LEADERS CALL CONFERENCE ON CONGRESS RACE.

TWO ARE MENTIONED

Friends of Judge A. B. Duncan and R. M. Duncan Think Either Would Run Well Against Faust.

Sheriff L. B. Campbell, chairman of the Democratic county committee, and Mrs. C. P. Fryer, vice-chairman, members of the Fourth district congressional committee, have been notified of a meeting to be held in St. Joseph Saturday afternoon and evening to talk over the selection of a Democratic standard-bearer for Congress against Charles L. Faust, the Republican incumbent, in the November elections.

Two names have been discussed in Democratic circles in St. Joseph and over the district as likely choices for the race against Faust. They are those of Judge A. B. Duncan, probate judge of Buchanan county, and of Richard M. Duncan, the city counselor of St. Joseph.

The St. Joseph Gazette says:

"While there have been undercurrents of talk in the upper counties of the district for various favorite sons, the belief seems to be that the party cannot win against Faust unless some man strong enough to keep Faust's vote down in St. Joseph and Buchanan county and liked well enough in Platte county to bring out the full Democratic vote, there is no use in a Democrat being entered in the race. This, local leaders say, either of the Duncans could and would do."

Consumers Oil Co. Name of New Co-Op.

Directors Meet Saturday and Decide to Begin Sale of Stock.—Fay Corrough Made V.-P.

The "Consumers Oil Company" will be the name of the new co-operative gasoline and oil concern in Maryville, it was decided by the board of directors, meeting at the courthouse late Saturday afternoon.

About seventy-five persons met earlier in the week and effected an organization for the distribution of gas and oil in Maryville and surrounding territory. Directors were elected at this meeting and on Saturday the directors elected Fay Corrough of Arkoe as vice-president. The other officers previously had been named.

An intensive drive will be started tomorrow by the directors, who will be assisted by several backers of the co-operative company in selling shares of stock in the company. The shares sell for $10 each and no person can buy more than ten.

Delbert Vert, secretary-treasurer, said Saturday that considerable interest in the proposed organization has been manifested and that several persons had promised to buy stock before the contracts were drawn up.

Those who attended the directors' meeting Saturday were Delbert Vert, Fay Corrough, Ed Fannon, John Dowden, William Gex, and Charles L. Wells, president.

PREPARE FOR RECORD MEET

FAIR WEATHER ALL THAT IS NEEDED, OFFICIALS SAY.

MANY VISITORS ALSO

Late Entries From Three More Schools Refused—Chairmen Are Busy.

Practically 1500 contestants and teachers from seventy-one high schools of Northwest Missouri—a record number of entries and a record number of schools—will come to Maryville Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week to participate in the annual Northwest Missouri High School contests and nineteenth annual track meet to be held at the College.

Everything will be in readiness for the opening of these sixty-five contests Thursday morning, M. E. Selecman, manager of the contests, announced today. Every contestant has been assigned to lodging and eating places in Maryville and tickets have been sent to them. The Maryville householders have also been notified of the number of students to care for.

The Maryville Chamber of Commerce will provide cars to meet the contestants at trains and take them to their rooming places. Many of the contestants will come by motor car if the weather permits.

Plans are being made to care for a large number of visitors in addition to the contestants. With fair weather prevailing, a record-breaking crowd is anticipated.

The Chamber of Commerce is suggesting that the merchants decorate their places of business with the College colors, Green and Whie.

The chairmen of the different contests are working today on selecting the judges in these events and on other arrangements.

Three more schools called Saturday to know whether it was too late for entries but since the time had expired, Mr. Selecman had to turn them down.

MARSHAL AIDS IN ARREST OF HIS OWN SON

McAtee and Garven were alleged to have been collecting liquor Saturday night which had been "hidden" alongside of the road. When apprehended they had a half pint of alleged liquor.

McAtee and Garven pleaded not guilty when brought before Judge John M. Dawson this afternoon. Their bond was fixed at $700 each.

Chamberlin to Greet Crew of the Bremen

One of Few to Have Spanned Atlantic by Air to Fly to Murray Bay, Quebec.

Hartford, Conn., Apr. 23.—Clarence Chamberlin, first non-stop flier to Germany from America, took off shortly before 11 a. m. today for Greenly Island to greet the first German non-stop fliers to America.

Hartford, Con., April 23.—Clarence Chamberlin, one of the little group of men to successfully span the Atlantic by air, expected to leave today in a Fairchild airplane for Murray Bay, Que., where he will greet the crew of the German transatlantic plane Bremen.

Last summer Chamberlin, with Charles Levine, flew the airplane Columbia from Mitchell Field, L. I., to Germany.

"This is the least I can do to show my appreciation for the honors accorded me when our flight ended in Germany last year," Chamberlin said.

Chamberlin is expected to greet the Bremen crew at Murray Bay and then act as an escort on the triumphal tour of the airplane to New York. He will be accompanied by Linton B. Wells, holder of the 23-day world record, and Edward B. Kelly.

MAY DISMISS AGAINST FALL

DROPPING OF OTHER OIL INDICTMENTS IS EXPECTED.

INTO STEWART CASE

U. S. Attorneys Prepare for Trial of Standard Oil Head on Contempt Charge.

Washington, April 23.—Harry F. Sinclair, acquitted here Saturday on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the government, has been subpoenaed to appear tomorrow before the Senate Teapot Dome committee, Chairman Nye announced today.

Nye said the subpoena had not yet been served upon Sinclair, although it was sent to New York this morning. Sinclair declined to testify before the committee on his previous appearance, pleading that he might incriminate himself.

Nye said the subpoena was based on the assumption that Sinclair now might feel free to answer any questions the committee asks.

Denies Stewart Overtures.

Nye denied that the committee had received any overtures from Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, to agree to tell all he knew about the Continental deal if the Senate will drop contempt proceedings against him.

Nye said the contempt proceedings would be prosecuted regardless of what Stewart tells at the hearing tomorrow, for which he has been subpeonaed.

Nye reiterated that later the committee undoubtedly would request appearance of Charles D. Hilles, Republican national committeeman of New York.

Probably Will Drop Fall Case.

Washington, April 23.—Announcement of a government decision to drop the Teapot Dome conspiracy indictment against former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall, is expected this week, as a result of the acquittal of Harry F. Sinclair Saturday by the jury which tried the oil multimillionaire on the same charge.

Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, special government prosecutors in the oil cases will make a final decision on the question in a few days. They believe now there is little chance of obtaining a conviction in the three criminal cases still pending, and all of them may be dropped.

This would bring to an end the cases resulting from the first Teapot Dome Senate investigation.

OVER TOP OF THE WORLD

WILKINS AND EIELSON TELL OF ARCTIC FLIGHT.

FLEW NEAR THE POLE

Missed Purposely for Exploration.—Marooned, Pilot Pushes Plane, Climbs in by Rope.

Green Harbor, Svalbard, Spitzbergen, April 23.—(Copyright 1928 by United Press)—From their own lips has come the story of the flight over the top of the world by Captain George Hubert Wilkins and Lieut. Carl B. Eielson.

After conquering the Arctic area they were snowed in for five days on Dead Man's Island, just a short distance from their goal, but Wilkins, with characteristic fortitude, got out of the plane, tied himself with a piece of rope attached to the seat of the plane, put his shoulder to the wheels and budged the plane out of its snow pocket. Then, as the machine taxied along the undulating hard packed snows, Wilkins ran along and finally got into the plane.

Had he been unable to climb aboard, he would have untied the rope and waited on bleak uninhabited Dead Man's Island in freezing cold weather while Eielson returned from civilization with aid.

Wilkins and Eielson did not find the land they set out to locate. Over the Arctic area is ice and water, they said.

Captain Wilkins started from Point Barrow, Alaska, April 15, at 10 o'clock Alaska time (presumably 10 a. m.).

He was obliged to change his starting point because the runway was too short for the heavily loaded monoplane which weighs about 1,800 pounds when empty and 3,600 pounds when loaded.

The weight of the plane necessitated a runway of about five-eighths of a mile to achieve a speed of 80 kilometers (50 miles) an hour, so that the plane could rise.

The newly selected starting point was bad because of loose snow which had to be hardened.

That was done only to a width of four meters (about 13 feet) so Lieutenant Carl Be. Eielson, pilot of the Arctic plane, was obliged to steer carefully. The ice was very uneven, adding to the danger of the start.

Over Cook and Peary Routes.

Captain Wilkins passed the places where Dr. Cook and Admiral Peary presumably had been and sighted Grand Land.

The modern air explorers passed about 300 miles from the North Pole. The weather was fine then, although a little foggy. The plane flew at a height of 1,000 feet and was obliged to rise a few times.

Occasionally it was necessary to ascend to 3,500 feet to get above the cloud banks.

The explorers sighted no land which had not been discovered previously.

There were no signs of animal life on the ice.

(Wilkins' trip of exploration over the top of the world was made for the sole purpose of trying to determine whether there was land where Admiral Peary thought he saw it. Wilkins purposely flew south of the North Pole, instead of across it, to carry out the scientific object of his flight.)

To Dangerous Landing.

Captain Wilkins took his last observation about 200 miles from Svalbard but visibility then became bad.

Near Svalbard (the Spitzbergen Archipelago) there was open sea.

Captain Wilkins knew he was near

Bennett to Recover, Physicians Believe

Quebec, Que., April 23.—Floyd Bennett, the aviator who was to have gone to Greenly Island as part of the relief expedition bringing supplies to the transatlantic plane, Bremen, will recover, physicians said today.

Bennett is believed to have developed pneumonia. He was in poor physical condition when he left Detroit last week.

Hoover Men Claim 500 on 1st Ballot

Washington, Apr. 23.—Hoover-for-President headquarters issued a statement last night declaring the Secretary of Commerce would have more than 500 votes on the first ballot at Kansas City. Five hundred forty-five votes are needed to select the Republican Presidential nominee.

It was claimed Hoover would have the solid delegation from at least twenty states, and that the total Hoover vote would come from forty-one of the forty-eight states and from Alaska, Porto Rico and the Philippines.

The statement also said that a substantial majority of the regular Republican membership in the House of Representatives favors Hoover's candidacy.

Wood and Schiller to Attempt Flight

British Seaplane With American Motors to Be Used in Flight From Ireland to Maine.

Miami, Fla., April 23.—Phil Wood, Canadian aviator, announced here today that he and Duke Schiller, of Bremen plane relief fame, plan a trans-Atlantic flight from Ireland to Old Orchard, Me., next July.

Wood and Schiller had planned a flight from Windsor, Ont., to Windsor, Eng., last year, only to have the flight called off by backers following two disastrous attemts to span the Atlantic.

Wood said a British-made seaplane would be used in the attempt.

Two American built motors will be taken to Ireland, however, and installed in the craft.

The Canadian flier planned to leave this week to confer with Schiller at Montreal. He said Old Orchard had been picked as the planned destination because a "flight to New York is a mechanical impossibility."

"No plane built today can carry enough fuel for such a flight," he said.

A BIG WEEK IN POLITICS

NEARLY 220 CONVENTION DELEGATES TO BE SELECTED.

EYES CENTER ON OHIO

Result of Bitter Campaign There May Make or Break Hoover.—Three Other States to Act.

By PAUL R. MALLON,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Apr., 23.—This is the big week in the primary campaign. Nearly 220 delegates will be selected for both the Republican and Democratic conventions in primaries Tuesday in Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Ohio.

The Republican battle in Ohio is the most important of the three. There an acid test of the candidacy of Secretary of Commerce Hoover will be made against the opposition of a slate of delegates pledged to the name of the late Senator Willis but now known as "Hoover opposition delegates."

The state has fifty-one votes in the convention. Political observers believe the delegation may be split about evenly, but a decisive victory or defeat for Hoover would have a material effect upon his candidacy nationally.

Death Adds to Bitterness.

The battle has been the hottest of all the convention primaries thus far. Before Senator Willis died he campaigned strenuously against Hoover. Since his death the animosities of the opposing factions have increased, though the bitterness has not been brought to public attention.

Senators Curtis of Kansas, Watson of Indiana and former Gov. Lowden of Illinois are the nominal legatees of the Willis strength but many of the Willis delegates have indicated they will vote for Vice-president Charles G. Dawes if they are elected.

Importance of the Republican primary in Massachusetts has been somewhat diminished by the edict of President Coolidge last Friday requesting that the campaign to write his name in on ballots be dropped. It had been planned to bring his home state delegation to the convention pledged to him for renomination.

The Hoover organization has been built up throughout the state and claims have been made by his managers that he will get the major portion of the thirty-nine delegates.

Mellon Controls Pennsylvania.

A delegation nominated by Mellon-picked candidates is expected to be chosen by Republicans of Pennsylvania, where the campaign has not been so active as in Ohio and Massachusetts. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon with

Name Appraisal Board for Drainage District

Circuit Court Selects Commissioners to Assess Lands in White Cloud Ditch Project.

John E. Davis, John McMahon and Ed Adkins today were appointed commissioners by Judge John M. Dawson in circuit court to appraise lands to be taken for rights-of-way and drainage purposes in the White Cloud drainage district.

The appointments were made upon application of the board of supervisors, composed of Lewis J. Davison, George W. Smith, Charles W. Jackson, George W. Cole and Joseph L. Holaday.

The commissioners will assess benefits and damages accruing to all lands in the district and to other property by reason of the execution of the plans for reclamation of the district. The commissioners were notified by Circuit Clerk W. R. Tilson that their first meeting will be held at 10 o'clock the morning of April 26.

FORD PLANE TO ISLAND

RELIEF SHIP ARRIVES WITH SUPPLIES FOR BREMEN.

EXPECT REPAIRS SOON

German Flyers May Resume Trip to New York Tomorrow.—Irish Companion Rejoins Them.

Montreal, April 23.—The relief plane sponsored by the North American Newspaper Alliance and the New York World landed on Greenly Island today after a 460-mile flight from Seven Islands, Quebec.

A Canadian Marconi message received here said the plane landed at 11:40 a. m.

The plane, which left Detroit last week, was loaded with supplies and repairs for the monoplane Bremen, stranded on Greenly Island after a flight from Dublin, Ireland.

Fitzmaurice Goes Back.

In the relief plane were Major James Fitzmaurice, the Irish member of the Bremen's German-Irish trans-Atlantic crew, Bernt Balchen, pilot; Ernest Koeppen, mechanic, and a representative of the flight's sponsors.

The Marconi company had word from its Quebec operator first and this was followed immediately by a flash from its Clarke City operator, announcing their safe landing.

Under plans made before departure of the plane, Koeppen will get to work immediately to repair the Bremen, whose pilots, Baron von Huenefeld, Captain Hermann Koehl and Major Fitzmaurice landed on Greenly Island more than a week ago.

Whether the Junkers mechanic can make the Bremen ready for a takeoff tomorrow morning, as originally planned, was a matter of speculation. When Koeppen left Lake St. Agnes he believed he could get the Bremen in shipshape within a very short time.

May Reach New York Wednesday.

Hence it was felt there that the Ford plane's delay in getting to Seven Islands overnight last night probably had not served materially to retard the eventual get-away of the Bremen. If these theories hold true, the Bremen would be in Lake St. Agnes tomorrow afternoon, and be ready to continue on to New York Wednesday morning.

The relief plane left Seven Islands at 5:10 a. m. Hardening ice enabled the plane to make a successful takeoff.

Among other things the plane carries the following: Havana cigars; Turkish cigarettes, beer, oranges, Canadian cheese, roast chicken.

But Cheese Is Spoiled.

The cheese won't be much good, however, because it became oil soaked before the Ford started. Incidentally this caused great worry to "Ernie" Koeppen, German mechanic, whose first interest in life is Junkers airplanes.

"Ach, but that has spoiled my oil," he sighed.

Meantime, there are reports that Baron Huenefeld, unaccustomed to such non-baronial fare as corned beef and beans, has a tendency to stomach trouble.

Business on Decided Upgrade, Hoover Says

Secretary of Commerce Notes Decrease in Unemployment—Says Outlook "Encouraging."

Washington, April 23.—Secretary of Commerce Hoover said today that business conditions were decidedly on the upgrade and unemployment is decreasing throughout the country.

"We are coming out of the seasonal dip and things look very encouraging," he said.

Parachute Jump 9,000 Feet; Planes Crash

Highest Emergency Record Made at Kelly Field When One Aviator Leaps.—Another Killed.

San Antonio, Tex., Apr. 23.—The highest emergency parachute jump on record was made at Kelly Field here today when cadets J. S. Henderson and D. M. Swisher collided 9,000 feet up. Henderson was killed, but Swisher made a safe descent in his parachute.

It was believed by army officers that Henderson was trapped in his plane or knocked unconscious by the collision.

The student flyers were flying pursuit planes in close formation in high altitude maneuvers when the accident occurred.

Henderson's home was in Seattle, Wash., Swisher lives at Dessie, Ind.

THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN NODAWAY COUNTY

THE PIONEERS OF 1928.

President Coolidge, in accepting for the nation the new statue of Andrew Jackson at Washington, took occasion to point out the debt that America owes to its pioneers. In addition, he remarked that we are still pioneers; only now, instead of penetrating into unexplored lands and forbidden seas, we are pioneering in the realm of ideas.

The region of the unknown has always held a peculiar fascination for us. The early colonists were not satisfied with their fertile lands along the Atlantic seaboard; they had to cross the mountains and see what lay beyond. They braved the perils of the wilderness, the attacks of hostile Indians, the dangers of starvation, to do it; and as a result of their daring, the nation developed more rapidly than any other nation in history. In one century it changed from an insignificant petty state to a great world power.

The country is pretty well settled now. There are still deserts to reclaim, great streams to harness, unstable water courses to curb; yet these are jobs for the engineers, not the adventurers. A man like Commander Byrd is blood brother to the old pioneers; yet he must do his exploring at the South Pole, the American continent is so well mapped.

So, as the president says, our field has changed. The pioneer spirit is still ours; but it must follow different channels now than before. We must train new ideas—new ideas of government, of social economy, of political and economic relationships—and find, not hidden valleys or mountain peaks, but undiscovered truths.

Already the job has begun. The American industrialist has found a new system, which he calls mass production, and is proving that it can immeasurably improve the lot of the common man. Hand in hand with the industrialist goes the advertising specialist; he has pioneered in a new field and has effected a revolution in time-honored methods of sales and distribution.

These are samples of what the new kind of pioneering involves. It is, perhaps, less thrilling and spectacular than the old, but it is fully as important. The old pioneer opened up new lands for settlemept and often possessed himself of a veritable kingdom as his reward. Our new pioneers open up new vistas in human progress; they make life easier and fuller for all of us. And they, too, reap rich rewards.

From its inception America has bred pioneers. It is still doing it. And the results will be eternally important.

THE GREATEST FLYING PERIOD

FEATS UNPRECEDENTED IN FIRST FOUR MONTHS OF 1928.

FLIGHT RECORDS FALL

Westward Hop Over Atlantic and One Over Top of World Only Two of Many Accomplishments.

By United Press.

A review of the outstanding aviation achievements of 1928 establishes the first four months of the present year as the greatest flying period in the world's history.

With the summer flying season just beginning the following aerial accomplishments have been recorded:

An airplane, in which rode Captain George Wilkins and Carl B. Eielson, flew over the top of the world from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitzbergen, remaining in the air 20½ hours.

Baron Gunther von Huenefeld, Captain Hermann Koehl and Major James Fitzmaurice made the first westward crossing of the Atlantic by plane.

Major DeBernardi of the Italian air service established a new airplane speed record at 318.53 miles an hour.

Eddie Stinson and George Haldeman established a new sustained flight record of almost 54 hours.

Bert Hinkler, British pilot, broke a number of records in his solo flight from London to Australia including the time for that flight and the longest solo flight.

Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Lebrix completed a remarkable air cruise of the world, the only part of which was not in an airplane was the westward crossing of the Pacific.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh completed an extremely difficult goodwill tour to Central America and Cuba.

The dirigible Los Angeles completed one of its longest voyages in a cruise to the Panama Canal zone.

A BIG WEEK IN POLITICS

Senator-Elect Vare of Pennsylvania usually dominate the Republican party of the state and they are seeking an uninstructed delegation.

The Democratic primaries in all three states have less significance than the Republican fights. In Ohio a delegation instructed for Atlee Pomerene, former senator, is expected to be named. Some of the delegates favor the candidacy of Governor Vic Donahey but most of them are expected to be in column for Governor Al Smith of New York before the balloting proceeds very far at Houston.

Smith will get the thirty-six Massachusetts delegates without trouble and is expecting sixty of the seventy-six Pennsylvania delegates. In Pennsylvania he has been opposed by Democratic drys led by Vance McCormick, Harrisburg publisher.

On Tuesday Republicans of Nevada will meet in convention. Indications are that an uninstructed delegation will be chosen.

"Support Coolidge" Is Plea.

In a final appeal to voters to support Hoover, Representative Burton, Republican, Ohio, declared today that the commerce Secretary "is the one candidate who stands squarely with Mr. Coolidge and his policies."

"However unobjectionable the candidate now advocated by the so-called Willis delegates may be, not one of them can be classified as friendly to Mr. Coolidge and his policies," Burton said. "Do the Republicans of Ohio wish to go back upon this past record support for him?"

Burton urged Ohio voters to go to the polls to "condemn the unjust and untruthful campaign which has been subjected to more abuse in this campaign than in his more than thirty years of public life because of his support of Hoover.

Pershing Helped Put Dawes in Limelight

EDITOR'S NOTE: This, the 13th in a series of Presidential Campaign Portraits written for the Democrat-Forum and Tribune and NEA Service by Robert Talley, is the second of four articles discussing the career of Vice President Charles G. Dawes. The third article on Dawes will be printed tomorrow.

By ROBERT TALLEY
NEA Service Writer.

Washington, April 23.—The story of Brig.-Gen. Charles G. Dawes in the World War—where he first became a national figure—runs parallel in many respects to the story of General John J. Pershing, is friend of a life time.

Their friendship began in Dan Cameron's 15-cent lunch room out in Lincoln, Neb., 40 years ago when Dawes was a struggling young lawyer and Lieutenant Pershing, was a military instructor at the University of Nebraska. William Jennings Bryan, another famous resident of Lincoln, enters the picture, but soon fades out.

Vice President Dawes explodes the legend that in his first lawsuit Bryan was attorney for the other side. Bryan's law firm—Talbot and Bryan—once opposed him in a rate case as counsel for the Missouri Pacific. Dawes says, but Talbot conducted it and Bryan remained pretty much in the background.

The bond between Dawes and Pershing, when the war broke out, was deeper than friendship which had ripened throughout the years; it was the bond of tragedy.

It came about this way:

During Pershing's absence in Mexico, fire destroyed the Pershing home and his wife and three of their four children were burned to death.

Dawes had one son—Rufus Fearing Dawes—who was making a record for himself at Princeton. No father was ever prouder of his boy; none ever hoped, planned or dreamed of a greater future for his child. And then, on the threshold of manhood, Rufus Fearing Dawes was drowned while bathing in Lake Geneva, Wisconsin.

The eulogy on his son that General Dawes wrote for the minister to read at the funeral is a classic. After reciting in a tender, sympathic manner, the material successes that his boy was winning, Dawes continued:

"My boy lived long enough to 'win out'. Whatever the years would have added would be only material. In a man's character is his real career.

"He died suddenly in the midst of happiness. He died with his high ideals unlowered. He died with all the noble illusions of highminded youth undisturbed and undispelled. He died without having lost' ambition, with his eyes fixed on the high mountains of life where, beyond any question, had he lived he would have climbed."

Fifty-one days after war was declared in 1917, Dawes left his bank in Chicago to become a lieutenant-colonel in an outfit of engineers (railway), training near Atlanta. He went to camp in his private car, taking his wife and daughter, and lived on his car while there.

Herbert Hoover, food administrator, tried to induce Dawes to join his organization and direct grain movement in this country. But Dawes refused; he wanted to go to France.

By this time the news got to Pershing, and Pershing promptly called Dawes to direct the supply forces behind the lines in France.

Dawes' job was to purchase material wherever he could find it in Europe, a very important job in view of the fact that submarines were sinking many of the cargoes that started from this country.

Dawes bought everything from hay to locomotives and organized labor battalions to build railroads, highways and mine coal. Supplies had to come and difficulties had to be brushed aside. Once, when in dire need of artillery horses, he finally found a number in Spain. Spanish law, however, prohibited their exportation. A neat little smuggling plot solved the difficulty.

Often Dawes negotiated single-handed with whole governments. He went at their commissions hammer and tongs, casting military etiquet to the winds, bellowing his demands and largely over-aweing their attempts at the tricks of diplomacy. His language was often unpolished, but usually effective.

Pershing and Dawes were frequently together, and about that time Dawes entered this in his published diary:

"I have been with General Pershing each day, taking lunch on Friday at the house, or rather the palace, where he is staying. Dear fellow and loyal friend. . . . We have both passed through the greatest grief which can come to a man. As we rode up together there occurred an instance of telepathy which was too much for either of us.

"Neither of us was saying anything, but I was thinking of my lost boy and of John's loss, and looking out of the window, and he was doing the same thing on the other side of the automobile. We both turned at the same time, and each was in tears. All John said was: 'Even this war can't keep it out of my mind'."

Nevertheless they had their jokes together and each helped lift the other's burden. Once, while lunching together in the former palace of Napoleon's Marshal Lannes, Dawes surveyed the magnificent splendors and then turned to the commander-in-chief.

"John," he said, "when I contrast these barren surroundings with the luxuriousness of our early life in Lincoln, Neb., it does seem that a good man has no chance in the world."

"Don't it beat hell!" Pershing laughed.

Another time Dawes thrilled a board of officers with an eloquent description of "General Pershing's famous Spanish friend, the famuos Don Cameron." Dawes prated on, describing a Spanish grandee of some sort who was noted as an evicurean—Pershing was convulsed with silent laughter, remembering the Dan Cameron of 15-cent lunch fame back in Nebraska.

After months of effort Dawes succeeded shortly before the war ended in getting the allies to unify their system of supply behind the lines. A joint board, with him as chairman, was formed to co-ordinate.

With General Pershing, Dawes—then a brigadier general—occasionally visited the front line and hospitals.

"I have seen war as it is," he says in his book. "Before the front-line private soldier and the front-line officers, the aviators and the tank men, a staff officer, no matter how essential his work or how high his rang, feels like standing at salute. At least I do."

Stewart Quits Race for Governor Today

Announces Withdrawal From Gubernatorial Contest in "Interest of Party Harmony."

Jefferson City, Mo., April 23.—Dr. James Stewart, state health commissioner, today announced his withdrawal as a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. He said he decided to quit the race in the interests of party harmony as there were too many candidates in the field.

"My canvass of the state leads me to believe that there are too many candidates in the field and, as I have not yet filed, my judgment is that I should withdraw in the interest of party harmony. I make this announcement so that there may be no doubt about the fact that I shall not file," Dr. Stewart said.

Sinclair Lewis, the Novelist is Engaged.

Rome, April 23.—Sinclair Lewis, the novelist, told the United Press today he was engaged to Dorothy Thompson, former Berlin correspondent of the New York Evening Post.

Quality! That Is Why We Have Waste-Baskets

The trash-bin is always larger than the strong-box. The waste-basket is usually twice the size of the letter-tray. Quality, or the lack of it, is what determines the importance of everything in life, whether it is shoes or sermons, poetry or pigs.

Some people claim that price is the most important consideration in our stores. They are wrong. No article ever crosses our counters that hasn't a backbone of Quality. Seconds, job lots, articles that won't wear well are too expensive in the long run for us to offer our customers.

Quality — always at a saving. This is more than a slogan with us. It is the foundation on which we built a successful business.

A DETOUR AT BURLINGTON

TRAFFIC WEST FROM THERE IS RE-ROUTED.

AT WORK ON BRIDGE

Old Road Now Dangerous, Engineers Warn.—Half Mile of Grading Done Last Week.

Traffic west from Burlington Junction now is being routed over a detour and State Highway No. 18, which now is under construction, has been closed. The detour starts at the end of the pavement in the west part of Burlington Junction, runs south and west across the river at the Corker bridge, and thence runs west and north, joining the state highway at the Houston corner.

Work on the Mill Creek bridge has caused the road to be closed and necessitates the detour. Pilings are being placed at the Mill Creek bridge and travel over the old road at this point is dangerous. The engineers are urging the use of the detour. The old Mill Creek bridge soon will be torn down.

Small culverts on the highway are nearly completed and the engineers predict they will be completed in another fifteen days.

The weather last week proved ideal for the highway workers, as about a half mile of grade on the west end of the project was built.

The Wabash Railway had a crew of men working on the new railway crossing west of the railway station. The crossing is being built with crushed rock.

Over the new route of the highway there are two railway crossings between Burlington Junction and Tarkio. Both of these are near Burlington. The Burlington tracks are just west of the main street in Burlington Junction and a little farther along the highway is the Wabash crossing.

Replies to Charges of Dr. Frank Crane

Rev. L. E. Lakin Defends "Exclusive," "Respectable," "Free" and "Militant" Church.

Charges made against the church by Dr. Frank Crane, widely known writer, were answefed at the First Christian church yesterday morning by the Rev. L. E. Lakin of Kansas City, pastor ad interim.

That the church is "exclusive," "respectable," "free," "militant,"—objections brought by Dr. Crane—were admitted by the Reverend Mr. Lakin, but he denied that for those reasons the church is "immoral."

The article to which the minister took exception appeared in the Century some time ago, under the caption, "Four Immoralities of the Church."

"Dr. Frank Crane," said the Reverend Mr. Lakin, "war for thirty-five years a minister in one of our evangelical Protestant bodies, but for the past fifteen years he has given himself to writing. I do not know why he quit the pulpit, but I do know that he is not in accord theologically with the great majority of that communion for which he preached."

Mr. Lakin quoted Dr. Crane's complaint that the church is "immoral" because it recognizes a non-membrship and his declaration that "The inclusiveness of Jesus' program is its very essence, so that when we make it exclusive we destroy its very nature."

"I have a note which I sound now and then on "Delusions of the New Phraseology," the Reverend Mr. Lakin said. "I think I ought to sound it here. We hear much about the "New Theology," a high sounding phrase, and we like to preach about it, and people like to hear, and they want nothing that does not wear 'new' brand. There are others who would have the 'old' brand on every message. The contents are immaterial, mind you, the brand is everything. 'I'm a Modernist,' says one, and another, 'I'm a Fundamentalist.' But these terms bespeak what? Few know.

"These high sounding words ought to be understood. To make them battle cries is the height of folly and ignorance."

Agreeing with Dr. Crane that "The inclusiveness of Jesus' program is its very essence," Mr. Lakin yet disagreed. "Am I to conclude," he asked, "because Jesus opened his kingdom to all, that all are enjoying its privileges? He would make His kingdom inclusive by making it exclusive. He would make Disciples not simply by naming them Christian but rather by making them Christian.

"An all-inclusive church is a fine phrase. It has an appeal. But what does it mean? It does away with the idea of salvation, no need of it. Jesus was just an ideal, not a Savior at all. Sins are only human—they belonged with the redeemed! There is no such idea as Hell. Everybody is on the way to glory!

"Dr. Crane says again that the church is respectable, therefore immoral. This pronouncement does not sound so good. It rather repels. The church is respectable, and we will let it go at that. Agreed, Dr. Crane, and we will not argue this point at all.

"The church is free. Of course it is. We glory in our freedom. Jesus Christ has set us free, and we are free indeed.

"And the church is militant, and therefore immoral says Dr. Crane in conclusion. Listen to his argument: The church proposes to make people good, to uplift them, to convert them, to save them. This he says is spiritual snobery. When I essay to convert you, I imply that I am better than you are and that you need to like me, says Dr. Crane.

"I answer that the preacher makes no such implication, neither does the church in preaching its message of salvation. The righteous man never glorifies in his righteousness. He never says follow me, but rather follow Christ. He never holds himself up as an example, but pleads that men be better than himself. It is not human goodness that justifies, but the goodness of God. We are saved by grace if saved at all.

"Yes, the church is militant. It ought to be if it is not. The goodness of God is its hope, and the hope that it holds out to the world."

God's Greatest Glory Reflected in Christ

Shown Also in Science and Potentialities of Man, Says Rev. W. N. Dewar.

The glory of God is first revealed in the discoveries of science; second, unfolded in the growing potentialities of man; and, third, in the transcendent personality of Jesus Christ. From this introduction the Rev. William N. Dewar spoke yesterday morning at the First Presbyterian Church on "God's Greater Glory."

The Reverend Mr. Dewar discussed the scientists who deny that the universe gives any evidence of the glory of God, or any evidence of God at all, declaring "We thank God, however, in these days when the pendulum of sanity is swinging back to normal in the scientific world, that the number of such scientists is growing steadily fewer."

He then pointed to the scientists whose minds "journey from physical to spiritual realities, breaking through the outer glory of the visible to the greater glory of the invisible."

Discussing the growing potentialities of man, the Reverend Mr. Dewar said "Nobody but a fool can imagine that this potential life of ours began as an accident in creation or jumped out of the ground of its own accord. That is thought gone woosy."

As his concluding point, the Reverend Mr. Dewar declared the "greater glory of God realized in the transcendent personality of Jesus. Jesus is the loftiest dream of the soul come true.

"The more we study the life of Jesus the greater are the glories we see in him. You may ask me, if you like, why I believe in Jesus. And I have only one answer to that, 'I can't help but believe in Him.' If I could not believe in Him, there is nothing else in which I would care very much to believe."

Only True Peace Is Inward, Says Pastor

The Rev. R. A. Mitchell Describes Three Worlds in Which Man May Live.

A man may live in three different worlds in three successive minutes.

Just how was shown by the Rev. R. A. Mitchell of the M. E. Church, South, who explained in a sermon yesterday:

"One part of the world is made up of what we are, what we think and what we do. Another part is made up of what other people are, what they think and what they do. Still another part is made up of laws which have their base in the will of the Creator."

The Reverend Mr. Mitchell read the text of his sermon from Mark 9:22-24, 'If thou canst do anything, have compassion on us and help us.

"If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth.

"Lord, I believe, help thou mine unbelief."

Jesus, the Reverend Mr. Mitchell pointed out, "was in one world where great forces held him in their grip, against which he struggled in vain. In that world he cried out to a power he felt might lift him out of it. 'If thou canst do anything, have compassion on us and help us.'

"In the next minute he was thrust into a world where he was master not only of his fate, but the fate of his body. 'If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth.'

"In the next minute he was trembling on the verge of a world which seemed to consist of human and divine correspondence. 'Lord, I believe, help thou mine unbelief.'

Human fellowship was described by the Reverend Mr. Mitchell as "merely the passing so close to one another that we may speak."

The first world he described as "conditioned by forces without us, not of our wishes, in which all our desires, our prayers and our strivings seem futile."

"Each of us," he said, "lives in such a world as that."

Mr. Mitchell said the second world, "of which we all know something," is one in which "we are made to feel fate is in ourselves."

The minister referred to the philosophy of Nietzsche, with its many followers, founded upon the belief that man was always master of his fate.

"There is some truth there, but not all," the Reverend Mr. Mitchell said.

"If each of these two systems of philosophy were carried to its logical conclusion, life would be impossible in a world that is living and growing," and he declared "There must be standing ground between the two."

It is the province of the Christian religion, he declared, to lead men into the world which partakes somewhat of each of the others.

"The Master," he said, "lived in this world. You never saw Him held in vain by great forces against which he struggled in vain. You never saw Him mastered by a stronger personality."

The pastor then questioned:

"Are you tired of the turmoil? Do you want to escape the din and the strife? Has your success left you with an empty heart?

"Then learn that the only peace that is full of rest, that means poise and calm, is the peace that is inward."

Declaring that the Christian merchant, the Christian boy, the Christian school teacher and the Christian soldier alike had this peace, he said:

"Give me that precious treasure and let accusing tongues wag and envious hands tear and the storms of life rage about my head, give me that and I shall be as happy as a little child resting in its mother's arms.

"'My peace give I unto you,' said Christ."

Kansas Citians to Church in Overalls

Kansas City, Kan., The belief that people will not attend church unless they are able to wear expensive clothes received a jolt here Sunday when members of the Central Methodist Episcopal church attended services attired in modest business suits, plain dresses and blue denims.

The Rev. Fred B. Benson, himself an advocate of simplicity in dress, appeared in the pulpit wearing a suit of overalls. He urged his congregation to make a regular habit of attending church in their work clothes in order to offset the contention that flashy clothes is an adjunct of religion.

GIRL ALONE

COPYRIGHT 1928 BY NEA SERVICE

By ANNE AUSTIN, AUTHOR OF "SAINT AND SINNER"

THIS HAS HAPPENED.

SALLY FORD, 16, lives in the state orphanage, the only home Sally has known since she was four. It is rumored that the matron, MRS. STONE has selfishly frustrated several proposed adoptions of Sally, wanting to keep her there where her understanding and sympathy with the small children make her a valuable helper.

She is summoned to the matron's office where a man, a farmer, judging from his clothes, awaits her. Sally is suddenly paralyzed with fear. She wonders what it all means. Then brightening with the hope that perhaps it is a father come to claim a long-lost daughter, she hurries to the office door.

Sally encounters little MISS POND sentimental, sympathetic office helper. When Sally begs her to tell her something of her mother, Miss Pond promises to come to the locker room and tell her what she knows.

As she leaves, the children who love her dearly rush to the fence and cry for her to tell them goodby. She runs back to the big wire enclosure and kisses the smallest ones, then with tears in her eyes turns and joins Clem at the car. When they drive away, he leans near her with a chuckle and says: "You're quite a kissing-bug, ain't you? How about a little kiss for your new boss?"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 4

Sally had shrunk as far away from Clem Carson as the seat of the "flivver" permitted, phrases from Mrs. Stone's embarrassed, vague, terrified warnings boiling and churning in her mind: "Keep your body pure!"—"musn't let men take any liberties with you"—"you're a big girl now, things you ought to know"—"if you're led astray, it will be due to evils in your own nature—"

She suddenly loathed herself, her budding, curving young body that she had taken such innocent delight in as she bathed for her journey. She wanted to shrink and shrink and shrink, until she was a little girl again, too young to know "the facts of life," as Mrs. Stone, blushing and embarrassed, had called the half-truths she had told Sally. She wanted to climb over the door of the car, drop into the hot dust of the road, and run like a dog-chased rabbit back into the safety of the Home. There were no men there—no queer, different male beings who would want to "take liberties"—

"My land! Scared of me?" Clem Carson chuckled. "You poor little chicken! Don't mind me, Sally. I don't mean no harm, teasing you for a kiss. Land alive! I got a girl of my own, ain't I? Darned proud of her, too, and I'd cut the heart outa any man that tried to take advantage of her. Ain't got no call to be scared of me, Sally."

She smiled waveringly, shyness making her lips stiff, but she relaxed a little, though she kept as far away from the man as ever. In spite of her dream of the future and her bitter disappointment over Miss Pond's disclosures as to her mother, she was finding the trip to the farm an adventure. In the 12 years of her life in the State Orphans' Asylum she had never before left the orphanage unaccompanied by droves of other sheeplike, timid little girls, and unchaparoned by sharp-voiced, eagle-eyed matrons.

She felt queer, detached, incomplete, like an arm or a leg dissevered from a giant body; she even had the panicky feeling that, like such a dismembered limb, she would wither and die away from that big body of which she had been a part for so long. But it was pleasant to bump swiftly along the hot, dusty white road, fringed with odorous, flowering weeds. Houses became less and less frequent; fewer children ran barefoot along the road, scurrying out of the path of the automobile. Occasionally a woman, with a baby sprawling on her hip, appeared in the doorway of a roadside shack and shaded her eyes with her hand as she squinted at the car.

As the miles sped away Carson seemed to feel the need of impressing upon her the fact that her summer was not to be one of unalloyed pleasure. He sketched the life of the farm, her own work upon it, as if to prepare her for the worst. "My wife's got the reputation of being a hard woman," he told her confidentially. "But she's a good woman, good clean through. She works her own fingers to the bone, and she can't abide a lazy, trifling girl around the place. You work hard, Sally, and speak nice and respectful-like, and you two'll get on, I warrant."

"Yes, sir," Sally stammered.

"Well, Sally," he told her at last, "here's your new home." This lane leads past the orchards—I got ten acres in fruit trees, all of 'em bearing—and the gardens, then right up to the house. Pretty fine place, if I do say so myself. I got 280 acres in all, quite a sizeable farm for the middle west. Don't them orchards look pretty."

Sally came out of her frightened reverie, forced her eyes to focus on the beautiful picture spread out on a giant canvas before her. Then she gave an involuntary exclamation of pleasure. Row after row of fruit trees, evenly spaced and trimmed to perfection, stretched before her on the right. The child in her wanted to spring from the seat of the car, run ecstatically from tree to tree, to snatch sun-ripened fruit.

"You have a good fruit crop," she said primly.

"There's the house." The farmer pointed to the left. "Six rooms and a garret. My daughter, Pearl, dogged the life out of me until I had electric lights put in, and a fancy bathtub. She even made me get a radio, but it comes in right handy in the evenings, specially in winter. My daughter, Pearl, can think of more ways for me to spend money than I can to earn it," he added with a chuckle, so that Sally knew he was proud of Pearl, proud of her urban tastes.

The car swept up to the front of the house; Clem Carson's hand on the horn summoned his women folks.

The house, which seemed small to Sally, accustomed to the big buildings of the orphanage, was further dwarfed by the huge red barns that towered at the rear. The house itself was white, not so recently painted as the lordly barns, but it was pleasant and homelike, the sort of house which Sally's chums at the orphanage had pictured as an ideal home, when they had let their imaginations run away with them.

Sally herself, born with a different picture of home in her mind, had romanced about a house which would have made this one look like servants' quarters, but now that it was before her she felt a thrill of pleasure. At least it was a home, not an institution.

A woman, big, heavy-bosomed, sternly corseted beneath her snugly fitting, starched blue chambray house dress, appeared upon the front porch and stood shading her eyes against the western sun, which revealed the thinness of her irongray hair and the deep wrinkles in her tanned face.

"Why didn't you drive around to the back?" she called harshly. "This young-up ain't company, to be traipsin' through my front room. Did you bring them rubber rings for my fruit jars?"

"You betcha!" Clem Carson refused to be daunted in Sally's presence. "How's Pearl, Ma? Cold any better? I brought her some salve for her throat and some candy."

"She's all right," Mrs. Carson shouted, as if the car were a hundred yards away. "And why you want to be throwin' your money away on patent medicine salves is more'n I can see! I can make a better salve any day outa kerosene and lard and turpentine. Reckon you didn't get any car'mels for me! Pearl's all you think of."

"Got you half a pound of car'mels," Carson shouted laughing. "I'll drive the new girl around back."

"Ma's got a sharp tongue, but she don't mean no harm," Carson chuckled, as he swung the car around the house.

When it shivered to a stop between the barns and the house, the farmer lifted out a few bundles which had crowded Sally's feet, then threw up the cover of the hatch in the rear of the car, revealing more bundles. Carson was loading her arms with parcels when he saw a miracle wrought on her pale, timid face.

"Lord! You look pretty enough to eat!" Clem Carson ejaculated, but he saw then that she was not even aware that he was speaking to her.

In one of the few books allowed for Sunday reading in the orphanage—a beautiful thick book with color-plate illustrations, its name, "Stories from the Bible," lettered in glittering gold on a back of heavenly blue—Sally had found and secretely worshiped the portrait of her ideal hero. It was a vividly colored picture of David, forever fixed in strong, beautiful grace, as he was about to hurl the stone from his slingshot to slay the giant, Goliath. She had dreamed away many hours of her adolescence and early young girlhood, the big book open on her knee at the portrait of the Biblical hero, and it had not seemed like sacrilege to adopt that sun-drenched, strong-limbed but slender boy as the personification of her hopes for romance.

And now he was striding toward her—the very David of "Stories from the Bible." True, the sheepskin raiment of the picture was exchanged for a blue shirt, open at the throat, and for a pair of cheap, earth-soiled "jeans" trousers; but the boy-man was the same, the same! As he strode lightly, with the ease of an athlete or the lightfootedness of a god, the sun flamed in his curling, golden-brown hair. He was tall, but not so tall as Clem Carson, and there were power and ease and youth in every motion of his beautiful body.

"Did you get the plow-share sharpened, Mr. Carson? I've been waiting for it, but in the meantime I've been tinkering with that little hand cider press. We ought to do a good business with it if we set up a cider stand on the state road, at the foot of the lane."

Joy deepened the sapphire of Sally's eyes, quivered along the curves of her soft little mouth. For his voice was as she had dreamed it would be—vibrant, clear, strong, with a thrill of music in it.

"Sure I got it sharpened, Dave." Carson answered curtly. "You oughta get in another good hour with the cultivator before dark. You run along in the back door there, Sally. Mrs. Carson will be needing you to help her with supper."

The change in Carson's voice startled her, made her wince. Why was he angry with her—and with David, whose gold-flecked hazel eyes were smiling at her, shyly, as if he were a little ashamed of Carson for not having introduced them? But, oh, his name was David! David! It had had to be David.

(To Be Continued)

Carson's daughter, Pearl, is not so friendly, as Sally learns in the next chapter.

Mrs. Alva Hunt of the Harmony district was in Maryville Saturday shopping.

land by two pointed mountain tops he saw on Prince Karl's (Charles) foreland, near Svalbard.

Then, with land in sight, a terrific snowstorm started.

Wilkins and Eielson knew they must land quickly. But landing was made difficult by the gale.

With consummate skill, Eielson managed to bring the plane to Earthnor Dosdmansoeira Island). The plane stopped dead after a run of only 300 feet in loose snow.

Wilkins and Eielson had flown 20½ hours at a speed of more than 110 miles an hour.

For steering, Captain Wilkins found the ordinary magnetic compass most serviceable. He used a sun compass too.

Navigation Marvelous.

Wilkins had a special map of the North Pole region prepared by the American Geographical Society, under whose sponsorship the flight was made.

The map was divided into 24 one-hour parts; longitude was divided into five-hour parts.

He had been able to obtain only the crudest kind of map of Svalbard, so his navigation must be considered marvelous, since he landed, in a swirling snowstorm, only about 50 miles south of his destination—King's Bay. There Wilkins expected to meet General Umberto Nobile, who is planning Polar exploration this year in the dirigible Italia.

Wilkins hopes to tell General Nobile about his experiences and the route so Nobile can plan his trip over some of the route which has not yet been flown over.

Wilkins and Eielson were forced to stay five days on Dead Man's Island because of unusually bad weather for this time of the year.

Snowstorm followed snowstorm, with the direction of the wind continually changing, and the average temperature 25 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

New Start Difficult.

About 3 a. m., Saturday the weather cleared and Wilkins and Eielson began to think of reaching civilization.

Until then the only things the pair could do were to eat and sleep and remain huddled up in the monoplane. It gave them a good rest but they had heavy work in front of them before they could start their airplane, which had been almost covered with snow.

Moreover, the gasoline supply was so low that fuel had to be pumped into the higher tanks so the plane could be made ready for starting.

Three times the engine was started at full speed, but the monoplane refused to budge.

The third time Wilkins tried to help loosen the plane from the snow.

He got out of the plane but held tight to a rope tied to the seat in the machine so he would be able to get back.

Finally the plane started to move but it was sometime before Wilkins was able to climb aboard.

When he was able to climb into the plane, Wilkins shouted:

"On board again."

Might Have Been Left Behind.

Before Captain Wilkins left the machine to help start the snowed-in plane, he and Lieutenant Eielson had agreed that if Wilkins was unable to get back when the plane started, Eielson should fly around and try to find some people.

They would have been asked to go to Dead Man's Island to rescue Wilkins.

Wilkins had left behind a tent and provisions but had he, too, been left behind he would have been exposed to the cruelest hardships of Arctic weather.

As the plane reached a height of 1,000 feet, the pair observed Barenstburg and the masts of the Green Harbor radio station, where they landed at 11 a. m.

The noise of their motor brought out everybody in Green Harbor.

Arrival a Surprise.

Their arrival was a tremendous surprise because nobody knew they had left Alaska.

Everybody hoisted their flags; everybody ran with Herr Bowitz Ihlen, the telegraph superintendent, to the landing place. Wilkins and Eielson were showered with congratulations upon the success of their epochal journey.

Wilkins and Eielson were fortunate to land near the Green Harbor radio station, because the radio at Kings Bay, where he was expected to land, has been out of communication since April 15, when the operator died.

The first act of Wilkins and Eielson after landing was to cover the motor with a double tarpaulin to prevent it from cooling too quickly, because the temperature was 27 degrees below zero.

They landed about 470 feet west of the Svalbard (Green Harbor) radio station, descending from a height of 250 feet.

The provisions they carried consisted of pemmican biscuit, malted milk and chocolate sufficient for six months.

Captain Wilkins and Lieutenant Eielson, their feat accomplished, greatly appreciated the change in diet afforded by their first breakfast in Green Harbor.

Arctic Conquerors May Fly to Paris

Wilkins and Eielson to Return to Civilization in Plane Flown From Alaska.

Copenhagen, April 23. — Captain George Wilkins, who with Carl B. Eielson flew across the top of the world from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitzbergen, may fly away from Green Harbor in one week, advices from Oslo said today.

Previous dispatches had said that the two exploring airmen contemplated a flight by way of Oslo and Copenhagen to Paris.

The flight would take them out of the Northland much ahead of the time when they could leave for civilization by boat. The ice jams surrounding Green Harbor probably will not break up until mid-May, it was said, and no boat could get in until then.

Many Congratulations.

Congratulatory messages were pouring in to the flyers today.

Roald Amundsen was among the many to congratulate Wilkins and Eielson.

"It was a splendid exploit—not only a sporting feat but a flight with a plan. General information Wilkins and Eielson obtained will be of great interest to geographical science, even though there could have been no exact observations," Amundsen said.

Both Wilkins and Eielson were reported in the gayest of spirits today and Eielson cabled his father in America:

"Am all right. Soon returning to the United States."

Over Sunday flags were flown at full mast throughout this northern territory as a symbol of the success of the flight and as a token to the bravery and daring of the two men.

Landing Very Hazardous.

It was pointed out that the landing was extremely hazardous. Dead Man's Island, 25 miles from Green Harbor, was the scene of the ending of the 20½ hour flight from Point Barrow.

It is a narrow and uninhabited spot. The two might have starved to death before help reached them, instead of being forced to remain there only five days before continuing to the little town of Green Harbor. Their official greeting came from radio operator Ihlen who was the sole official representative.

Piles Now Cured Without Surgery

Every sufferer from piles or other rectal troubles should write for a new 68-page book on these ailments that is being distributed free and postpaid by Dr. O. A. Johnson, eminent Rectal Specialist and Ambulant Proctologist. It explains the new ambulant method that has cured more than 15,000 sufferers from piles without surgery, cautery, burning, acids, ligature, electricity or other harsh, painful means. Yet the piles are removed and cured cleanly, entirely and permanently. Ailments like nervousness, irritability, pain in the back, groin, head; stomach, liver and kidney troubles; constipation, run down condition, female complaints and a host of others that rectal troubles so often cause, are usually cured, too, when the piles are cured. No matter how long you have suffered or how severe your condition, be sure to write Dr. O. A. Johnson, Room 134, 1324 Main St., Kansas City, Mo., and this valuable book will be sent you without cost or obligation.

Says Conscience May Often Be Mistaken

The Rev. W. S. Woodhull Pleads for Intellectual Enlightment as Well as Obedience.

The sermon of the Rev. W. S. Woodhull at the First Methodist Church yesterday morning was on the topic, "From Pharisee to Apostle," a discussion on the conversion of Paul.

"The first of many suggestions of the highest interest is the tragedy of a mistaken conscience," the Reverend Mr. Woodhull said. "At its best a really commanding conscience often does involve tragedies. For it points always not to the easiest way but to the right way. And the right way may lead over some very steep, flinty roads, may demand the surrender of loved possessions and the giving up of dear dreams. It may lead through Gethsemanes and up the hill of Calvary. To know the joy of an imperial conscience one must be prepared to know the sorrow of bitter self-denial.

"But when the conscience is mistaken, then is the tragedy most terrible. For you must know that the conscience in its demand for obedience is dependent on the instructed judgment for its choice of commandment. Our education, our environment, our wisdom are all so incomplete and often so false that none of us can be sure that our consciences are always commanding us the thing that is in all its inclusions absolutely the right. And all too often men have been driven down the road that came to the wrong end by the very conscience which for their soul's sake they must obey.

"Paul acknowledged with the deepest remorse that he had persecuted the Church but he comforted himself with the word that he had done it 'in all good conscience.' His conscience was good enough in its intense urging to do the thing that he judged to be right; but, his judgment being at fault, it was inevitable that his conscience should be mistaken. And what a tragedy of imprisonment and of death for many a disciple of Jesus came out of that mistaken conscience.

"Often has the Church been sadly hindered by devoted men who in obedience to their mistaken consciences became stumbling blocks in the way of progress. Sometimes the closest ties of friendship and of family have been torn asunder because two consciences were commanding obedience and the two did not agree. The religious wars and persecutions that have made thousands weep and have devastated whole nations have all had in them as a large element consciences that have urged their possessors to the precipice on mistaken roads.

"It is well to pray that we all may be obedient to our consciences, but it is also well to pray for intellectual enlightment that our consciences be not mistaken in the way."

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Dotson of Bedford, Ia., were here today.

Mrs. Lois Street, teacher in Pickering High School, went to Harveyville, Kan., to spend the week-end with her husband, Fred Street.

Auto Speed Crown Taken From Britain

Ray Keech in Triplex Racer Averages 207.55 Miles an Hour, With Maximum of 213.9.

Daytona Beach, Fla., April 23.—An angry young American racing driver who swore "I'll show 'em I can break it" had today wrested the world's speed crown from Great Britain. Ray Keech, 27, drove his triplex racer an average speed of 207.5526 miles per hour on the Daytona Beach sands Sunday to keep his promise.

His record smashing dashes—one up the beach, the other down—were made following failure of the automobile association's timing device to function in a previous attempt that Keech claimed was itself a record breaker.

"I'll show 'em again—you'd think this was a picnic," Keech shouted and jumped into his car. It roared with the wind at a clocked time of 213.903 miles. He turned around at the end of the course and roared back. His time for the measured mile was 201.-903—average 207.5526.

The previous record was made in February's international speed trials by Capt. Malcolm Campbell, Britisher—time 206.95 miles per hour.

Keech's record was in competition again today. Frank Lockhart, weather conditions permitting, will attempt to beat his fellow countryman's mark. Lockhart will drive his rebuilt Blackhawk, in which he was injured during a February attempt at the record. The sixteen cylinder black streak somersaulted into the ocean, pinning Lockhart.

To Proceed Against Stewart.

Meantime, however, Acting United States Attorney Leo A. Rover prepared for trial the first case resulting from last winter's renewed Senate oil inquiry—the indictment of Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, on a charge of contempt of the Senate. Stewart has pleaded not guilty, and his trial before a jury has been tentatively set for May 21.

The Senate Teapot Dome committee expects to discuss with Stewart tomorrow evidence tending to indicate he received one-fourth of the Continental Trading Company's mysterious $3,080,-000 liberty bond profits.

Members of the Sinclair jury, which returned its verdict after an hour and fifty-six minutes of deliberation, were reluctant today to discuss the case, although one or two disclosed that the defense lawyers won the case long before it went to the jury. The verdict was reached on the third ballot, eight voting for acquital and four being uncertain on the first ballot. Only two were uncertain on the second ballot.

"Victim of Circumstances."

The jury was said to feel Sinclair a victim of circumstances, indicating that the defense's reiteration that "95 per cent of the government's case was against Albert B. Fall and 5 per cent against Sinclair" made a deep impression.

The other two pending oil indictments which may be dismissed charge Fall with having received a $100,000 bribe from E. L. Doheny, to whom Fall leased the Elk Hills Naval Reserve in 1922, and Doheny with giving the same "bribe."

These indictments are weak, however, because of legal decisions that an official cannot accept a "bribe" to do an unauthorized act. The U. S. supreme court has held the leases were unauthorized, has returned the reserves to the navy.

Sinclair and his family had gone to their country home at Rancocas, N. J., where Sinclair owns a great cattle and racehorse farm.

Hearing on June 4 Asked.

Washington, April 23. — United States Attorney Leo Rover announced today he would ask the District of Columbia Court of Appeals to hold a special session June 4 to hear the appeal of Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, from local federal court decisions refusing him freedom from Senate arrest.

ACCEPT FLOOD BILL CHANGES

Amendments Place Mississippi Flood Project Under President and Provide for Army Conrtol.

Washington, Apr. 23.—The Jones-Reid Mississippi flood control bill was changed by the House today to meet some of President Coolidge's objections. The House adopted in rapid order, without a record vote, the Coolidge amendments previously approved by the flood control committee.

These amendments place the project directly under the President and provide for a supervising board of three, controlled by army engineers, instead of a board of five in which civilian influence would have predominated. They were offered by Chairman Reid of the flood control committee.

In offering them, Reid made it clear the committee would not support other amendments which President Coolidge considered vital and which the committee has rejected.

The amendments rejected by the committee which are held vital by Republican forces are those requiring the states to furnish levee rights of way along the floodways, and eliminating the government acquisition of rights of way or land for floodways.

The latter, Reid declared, would leave no way open for damages when water was diverted through the floodways in time of flood.

The intention of the House to stand by Reid was indicated at the outset of the session today when it voted down, 151 to 40, a motion to take up legislation other than the flood bill.

No Trace of Kansas City's Brutal Killer

Nearly 200 Arrests Follow Murder of Windsor Man While Engaged in "Painting the Town."

Kansas City, April 23.—Police held little hope today of capturing the slayer of Pearl M. Rusk, 34-year-old proprietor of a chick hatchery at Windsor, Mo., who came to Kansas City Saturday night with several others "to see the sights and do the town up brown," only to be brutally beaten to death at the height of his merriment.

Failure of any of the witnesses to the tragedy to get a description of Rusk's assailant led police to the conclusion the killer never would be found. He escaped after trampling Rusk to death and leaving his body lying in the gutter. Police said the tragedy was one of the most dramatic ever to come to their attention.

As a direct result of the inhuman treatment of Rusk, police raided all of Kansas City's most notorious night clubs at an early hour today. They concluded their activities after nearly 200 persons were in jail or had given bond to appear in court today to answer liquor charges or charges of vagrancy.

Final Grain Review.

Chicago, April 23.—Need of rain over many sections of the grain belt sent all grain futures into a sharp advance on the board of trade today. Tremendous profit taking, led by locals struck all bits during the last hour, however, and sent all prices into a dive. Wheat and corn retained some of their early advances, but oats broke and closed lower.

Final figures: Wheat ⅝c to 1c up; corn, ⅝c to ½c up and oats, ½c to ½c off; provisions closed sharply higher.

Wheat prices climbed steadily all day. The opening was a large fraction of weakness today. These interests covered hurriedly, fearing another bull drive like that of a week ago. Rains were reported from winter wheat sections over the week-end, but those districts which needed it most are still without moisture.

Especially in northwest Kansas and sections of Oklahoma was the drought danger reported acute. Outside markets readily followed the bulge here and resistance to the upturn was not pronounced. Cash demand continued strong, prices advancing ½ to 3 cents. Export business was estimated at 500,-000 bushels, mostly Manitoba and Durum varieties. Receipts here were 46 cars.

Corn's strength was mainly derived from wheat and there was no special news in the pit. Seeding, however, is getting off to a late start and rain is badly needed in some corn belt districts. Receipts were larger than expected at 191 cars but cash demand held good. Cash prices advanced ½c.

1925—Eagleville	22 points.
1926—Plattsburg	27 points.
1927—Plattsburg	22 points.

Although the high school contests and athletic events at the State Teachers College this week are being held for the nineteenth time, the girls' track and field meet is a comparatively new event.

The girls' meet, to be held Friday, will be the sixth, as it was not until 1923 that that this division was added to the contests. Maryville and Plattsburg have shared equally well in the girls' meet honors, each taking two.

The events for the girls' meet this year vary considerably from the first meet, as only the running broad jump, high jump, 75-yard dash and 220-yard relay remain from the initial meet.

The basketball and baseball throws, shuttle relay and low hurdles have been added and the 50 yard dash lengthened to 60 yards. The javelin, hop step and jump, shot put, standing broad jump and discus have been discontinued.

11 Schools in First Meet.

Eleven schools took part in the initial meet, Maryville winning with 35 points. Trenton was second with 31 and McFall third with 15 1-3. Other schools placed as follows: Barnard, 6; Parnell, 5½; Hopkins, 4½; Oregon, 3; Plattsburg, 2½; Ridgeway, 2 and Jamison entered. Boyer of Trenton copped 28 points of Trenton's 31 points.

The events on the first meet were the javelin, running broad jump, hop step and jump, standing high jump, 75 yard dash, 50 yard dash, shot put, standing broad jump, discus and 220 yard relay.

Smith Finishes Tenth in Kansas Decathlon

Cecil ("Twister") Smith of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College, placed tenth in the decathlon at the Kansas Relays, held at Lawrence, Friday and Saturday.

The decathlon was won by Churchill of Oklahoma. Vernon Kennedy, Warrensburg State Teachers College, was second.

Smith placed first in the 400 meter run, second in the 100 meters, fourth in shot put, tied for second in the 100 meter high hurdles, fourth in the 1500 meter run, seventh in the discus, eleventh in the pole vault and ninth in the javelin.

Smith was in a slow heat of the 1500 meters run, since Churchill, Kennedy and two or three more distance men were still contesting in the javelin. Smith won the heat by sixty yards or more, and his time could have been improved if he had been pushed. This was his first mile race and he did not know what pace to set in the early laps.

His race in the 400 meters, which he won, was also his first and, because he was pushed, he made the run in fast time. His dash in the 100 meters was also made in exceptionally good time although he was beaten by Charles, the Haskell sprinter, by one-tenth of a second.

Smith's time in the high hurdles, in which he tied for second, was in good time considering he had not run a flight of high hurdles this spring before running them at this meet.

What Baseball Stars Did Yesterday.

By United Press.

Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Tris Speaker, Ty Cobb and Rogers Hornsby were idle Sunday when rain and cold caused postponement of games in the East.

Paul Waner doubled once in four times at bat and scored a run.

Harry Heilmann failed to get a hit in four official trips to the plate, and now has an average of .200 for the current season.

Kiki Cuyler likewise failed to hit safely in four times up, although his team mates had little trouble with Johnny Miljus' delivery.
